EASTERN NEWS.

BY TELEGRAPH TO THE OREGONIAN.

Pacific Mail Matters.

NEW YORK, July 15—The rally in the stock market at the close to-day was chiefly in sympathy with the rise in Pacific Mail to 44¼, and in Panama to 110¾, which stocks advanced on a rumor that the Pacific Mail Company had leased the Panama railroad. The facts in the case are as follows: The Directors of both Companies have been talking over the subject for months, and a committee appointed by a joint meeting of the Directors on Tuesday have the matter in charge. The plan proposed is for the Pacific Mail Company to make an arrangement of some kind to operate the Panama road, as neither Company can lease to the other according to their charters. Under this arrangement it is proposed that the Pacific Mail Company relay the Panama road with steel rails, as the old iron rails are worn out; pay interest on the Panama Company's bonded debt; provide for the sinking fund; pay 12 per cent per annum for Panama stockholders in quarterly installments, and after this give the Panama Company half the net earnings. This plan will probably be adopted. The P. M. S. S. Co. have contracted for the construction of a new steamer.

Boston Wool Market.

BOSTON, July 15—The demand for nearly all kinds of wool is steady, although some manufacturers are [illegible] to hold back and bear the market in anticipation of easier prices. Large receipts tend to give an impression to buyers that a lower range of prices may prevail, but stocks have only begun to accumulate, as supplies now arriving cost comparatively high rates in the interior. Receivers are only willing to sell when a fair profit is realized. Combing and delaine fleeces are sought after and all [illegible] readily taken at current rates. Most of the large mills have a supply for the present, but many of them cannot keep out of the market for any length of time. Foreign advices are still quite [illegible] and there is no margin for shipments to this side. Sales of Ohio and Pennsylvania fleeces [illegible] Michigan and Wisconsin 50@ [illegible]; combing delaine fleeces 50@60c; washed 42½@47; unwashed Kentucky and California spring 20@40c.

THE WEEHAWKEN OIL FIRE.—From a dispatch dated New York July 11th we find the following particulars of the late fire at Weehawken: The fire which broke out in the Weehawken oil docks last evening raged all day to-day with unabated fury. When it was [illegible] the tanks would go, the laborers employed in the yard were put at work removing property, and succeeded in rolling off about 100 barrels of oil, but the heat became so intense that it was impossible to remove more. In addition to the destruction of the tanks the large wooden warehouse and its contents were entirely destroyed. Another house back of the structure, escaped destruction but the cooper shops were burned. The burning oil ran out into the river and burned away 100 feet of the long pier, entirely destroying the short pier, and burned out a section of the trestle-works, portions of which were saved by the firemen, who cut away between fifty and seventy five feet. This evening the last tank burst and the flames were then confined to the property in the yard. The total loss is estimated at $750,000. Sixteen tanks, estimated to contain 65,000 barrels, were consumed. Beside the destruction of the piers, warehouse and cooper shop and damage to the trestle-works, the road bed was ruined, sleepers burned, and rails twisted into every conceivable shape. Four cars, with sixty five cords of wood, valued at $2,000 and a barge, were also destroyed. The insurance is not over $100,000, in five Boston and a number of New York companies and in the London and Liverpool and Globe, of London.

A NIGHT IN THE COUNTRY

A ST. LOUIS EDITOR'S EXPERIENCE.

The St. Louis Globe says: "About 11 o'clock the dogs take a tongue in. The faithful watch dogs generally form themselves into granges, each containing about 700 dogs, for mutual aid and benefit in the clean distillation of mutton. Every night one hundred dogs steal away silently to kill sheep, while the other six hundred bark furiously to induce their owners to believe that they are like the Hon. Elijah Pogram, active to their trust, and to cover the bloody operations of their fellows. At midnight the cow whose calf had been reft from her having reflected on her loss lifts her voice and laments. The lament of a sorrowful cow in a barn is something sui generis in the matter of sounds. In the first place it takes her a long time to become loud—an equally long time to fill the barn with noise. But when the building is crowded with moo, and it begins to leak out at the windows and doors in muffled and melancholy thunder. She has a long interval of rest to prepare another blast ere the first ululation has been exhausted. About 2 in the morning she is drowned out and silenced by a jackass somewhere in the country who having nerved himself for the effort by a silence of twenty four hours, delivers himself by a bray that makes the sky bright with a responsive shower of shooting stars. There is an awful silence for about twenty minutes; no animal daring to call his voice his own; then the jackass sings again. Just as the country side is congratulating itself that the infliction is over, for another interval of twenty minutes, he discharges a third volley, and then is heard no more. You, however, do not know that he has broken a blood vessel or gone to sleep, but with a dreadful uncertainty as to when the next bray will occur, put your head under the clothes and your thumbs in your ears and wait."

A HOME-MADE MARRIAGE

A special dispatch from Louisville to a Chicago paper details the marriage at New Albany, Ind., on that day of the daughter of Dr Seth Hobbs, a prominent physician, to Gardner Knapp. A large number of friends were present, but no minister, but the following was what made the parties man and wife:

FRIENDS AND FELLOW CITIZENS, LADIES AND GENTLEMEN—We, Gardner Knapp and Laura P. Hobbs, believing that our hearts and souls are already matrimonially united, appear before you now, thus publicly to celebrate the commemoration of our union. We hold the opinion that neither Church nor State has any moral or equitable right to interfere with or in any just claim to be consulted in reference to the arrangements that our spontaneous sentiments and sympathies have prompted us to make. Therefore, in nonconformity to and disregarding the rules and regulations in such cases made and provided by what is called society, we adopt such form and ceremony as in our judgments and consciences seem most just and proper; and now, in the presence of these witnesses and our invisible spirit friends here assembled, we proclaim, publish and declare ourselves husband and wife, and may God and the angel world add their blessing.

A CURIOUS CONTRADICTION.—Boss Shepherd of the District of Columbia, has been compared in a general way to the retired Boss who now handles the poultices in the penitentiary at Blackwell's Island. Shepherd, when he was on the witness stand, was asked whether he had ever visited Tweed for the purpose of getting the forms on which the contracts were given and an insight into his mode of business. This Shepherd stoutly denied. More than that, when the question was repeated he declared that he never saw Tweed in his life. Then the following letter was produced and its authenticity was not questioned:

My Dear Sir: Since I wrote you this morning I have been informed that Mr Shepherd did once call on me in company with the committee, and that I directed the Chief Clerk of the Department of Public Works, of which I was the Commissioner, to show him the workings of the Department and its forms, which he did. The matter had escaped my recollection, and I now have not the slightest recollection of it, but presume it is so. I write this that you may know exactly my relation with Mr S. Yours, etc.,

W. M. TWEED.

GOING TO GLORY.—Lincoln, Neb., July 7.—Edward Severance, 21 years old, jumped into a 65 foot well to-day while under religious excitement. He had just returned from a week spent at a Methodist camp meeting. After returning he remarked that he guessed he would go to glory, and sprang into the well. His father summoned help and went down into the well. The young man fought him fiercely. The father fastened a rope to the young man and drew him up. He was bruised from head to foot. He will be watched hereafter.

YANKEE GIRLS

[illegible] THEY BEHAVE THEMSELVES ACROSS THE [illegible]

Our American girl while in Italy last summer, three days after meeting Prince Vermicelli, made an appointment to meet him at [illegible] alone, and that without the least thought of impropriety. She wants adventure. "Are you aware that your daughter has gone out rowing alone with Prince Vermicelli?" said an English matron to the American mother. "Certainly," replied she, with utter [illegible] of the enormity committed, at least [illegible] appearances. But her next remark was more startling: "And I think she has used Carlo very badly, too, for she neglected to keep an appointment with him yesterday morning."

The English matron is astounded at such liberty to her seeming given. The American wonders at her companion's squeamishness. Neither party understands the other.

Our American girl should not have gone out alone with Prince Vermicelli from the [illegible] of the waters the worst construction is placed on such action. Appearances here are deemed incontrovertible proofs of acts. But the American girl and her mother do not yet care for this. "My daughter," she remarks, "can take care of herself." They are not going to be bound and cramped by any such Old World notions of propriety. This is independent, but it may not be profitable. It may occasion the inconvenience of causing both mother and daughters to be regarded as almost disreputable characters by the shocked English. A nice young lady taking her morning bitters at the Long [illegible] would not cause any greater sensation and aversion than does the lawless young American lady here at times. Now let us be profound. Prejudice and custom must be respected to secure friendship. "When among the Romans, &c." The Shah of Persia, on visiting England, had the good sense to leave his three or three hundred wives at home. Let us imitate the spirit of the Shah, and thereby secure closer communion with our British brethren. If the Columbian lady will be loud and fast she will not enter the penetralia of the best English society.

Our American girl who made the appointment with Prince Vermicelli came back that day with a flushed face and glittering eyes. She was in a rage. The Prince had not been gentlemanly. But she had taken care of herself. The Prince had a black eye. "She had," she remarked, "wiped him" with her parasol. The Prince was puzzled. He had only acted as any man of fashion in his country would have done. But his only trophy was a black eye. A new light at last dawns upon the American mother. She sees that she is in a land where the standard of propriety is widely different from that of America.

I could not with the best intentions toward you, said the kind hearted English woman, in conversation afterward with her, afford, after the liberty you allow your daughters, to recognize you in London society. Sometimes the American girl professes not to care for English opinion in this matter. But I don't care too often on the lips mean, I do care in the heart. It is natural to desire that which is difficult to obtain, to see what is hidden from the many, to go into exclusive circles, to have a glimpse of London society. However, the American girl's self reliance, despite its abuse, seems to be the winning card. Continental respectability and propriety teaches its daughters that they are weak, unable to guard themselves, and that men are ravening wolves. Otherwise may not the masculine be trusted out of the mother's sight with the girls.—Prentice Mulford's Letter.

A BEAUTIFUL TRIBUTE

THE LESSON OF CHARLES SUMNER'S LIFE — DUTY FIRST AND ALWAYS.

This is the great victory, the great lesson, the great legacy of his life, that the fidelity of a public man to conscience, not to party, is rewarded with the sincerest popular love and confidence. What an inspiration to every youth longing with generous ambition to enter the great arena of State, that he must heed first and always the divine voice in his own soul if he would be sure of the sweet voices of good fame. Living, how Sumner served us, and dying, at this moment how he serves us still. In a time when politics seem peculiarly mean and selfish and corrupt, when there is a general vague apprehension that the very moral foundations of the national character are loosened, when good men are painfully anxious to know whether the heart of the people is hard and [illegible], Charles Sumner dies, and the universality and sincerity of sorrow such as the death of no man [illegible] living among us could awaken, show how true, how sound, how generous is still the heart of the American people. This is the dying service of Charles Sumner, a revelation which inspires America to find his shining example as a fountain to which the eyes, and never again to despair of the higher and more glorious destinies of his country. And of that destiny what a foreshadowing was he! In that beautiful home at the sunny and leafy corner of the national city, where he lived among books and pictures and noble friendships and lofty thoughts—the home to which he returned at the close of each day in the Senate, and to which the wise and good from every land naturally came—how the stately and gracious and all accomplished man seemed the very personification of that new union for which he had so manfully striven, and whose coming his dying eyes beheld—the union of ever wider liberty and juster law, the America of comprehensive intelligence and of moral power! For that he stands up to that his imperishable memory, like the words of his living lips, forever lifts us—lifts us to his own great faith in America and in man. Suddenly from his strong hand—my father, my father, the chariot of Israel and the horsemen thereof—the banner falls. Be it ours to grasp it and carry it still forward, still higher. Our work is not his work, but it can be well done only in his spirit. And as in the heroic legend of your Western valley the men of Hadley faltering in the fierce shock of Indian battle, suddenly saw at their head the lofty form of an unknown captain, with white hair streaming on the wind, by his triumphant mien strengthening their hearts and leading them to victory, so, men and women of Massachusetts, of America, if in that national conflict already begun, as vast and vital as the struggle of his life, the contest which is beyond that of any party or policy or men are—the contest for conscience, intelligence and morality as the supreme power in our politics and the sole salvation of America—you should falter or fail, suddenly your hearts shall see once more the towering form, shall hear again the inspiring voice, shall be exalted with the moral energy and faith of Charles Sumner, and the victories of his immortal example shall transcend the triumphs of his life.—Geo. W. Curtis's Eulogy on Sumner.

THE FISHING FROG.—Writers on natural history describe a hideous reptile known as the fishing frog, which angles for its game as expertly and with as great success as the most adroit fly fisher. He is a clumsy, awkward swimmer, but nature has compensated him for his unwieldiness by furnishing him with an equivalent for a rod and line, with bait always ready for use. Two elongated tentacles spring from his nose, which taper away like actual fishing rods. To the end of them is attached by a slender filament, which serves the purpose of a line, a bait in the form of a tiny bit of membrane. The hook are set in the mouth of the fisherman down below, and in order to induce the fish to venture within reach of them the angler stirs up the mud at the bottom with his fins and tail. This attracts the fish and conceals him from their observation. He then plies his rod; the glittering bait glows in the water like a living insect. The dazed fish are taken in great numbers, perfectly circumvented by the trick of the crafty angler.—From the Galaxy for June.

THE SUN LIBEL SUIT.—Washington, July 12.—It is stated that some new complications have arisen in the case of Charles A. Dana, so that his indictment is now improbable.

A THRILLING ADVENTURE

A AERONAUT'S [illegible] PERIL.

The Toronto Herald gives the following detailed account of the perilous position in which Prof. Squire, the aeronaut, was placed on Dominion Day. At Woodstock, Prof. Squire attempted to ascend with his balloon the Atlantic. The starting point was Court House square. The professor regarded the situation as particularly dangerous in a high wind, as the square is flanked on each side by lofty buildings, including the Court House, Bank of Montreal and W. M. Church. During the afternoon the balloon, which was being inflated with hydrogen gas, was the center of attraction, and at the time of starting fifty to ten thousand people had assembled to witness the voyage in mid air. The Atlantic is constructed of a peculiar quality of pongee, very thin and soft in texture, but when oiled capable of holding the gas. The netting, which travel [illegible] the balloon, is double and twisted silk, and the ropes by which the netting is attached to the basket are about [illegible] inch in diameter. The basket is constructed of strong wicker work, being about three feet in diameter and two in depth. The ropes which attach to the balloon are woven in so as to pass completely in under the same. During the day several small balloons were sent up to show the direction of the wind, from experiments thus made it was shown that the principal danger was the Bank of Montreal and the W. M. Church. Previous to starting it was determined to remove the balloon from the place where it was inflated to a point nearer the Court House, with the expectation that the Atlantic would pass to the north of the [illegible]. The cargo in the basket consisted of three bags of sand weighing each about fifty pounds, a grappling-iron, to which was attached a strong rope, and Professor Squire, who was to start on his 18th voyage amid the cheers. All being in readiness orders were given to cast off. There was a hush and the multitude grew silent as the unwieldy Atlantic, being freed, swayed backward and forward and slowly rose from its resting place to make another voyage in the ethereal blue.

A steady gale had been blowing all day, but its strength was not apparent until the balloon struck the current of air above the house tops; this reached, it swayed with the breeze and swept on at a rate of at least 15 miles an hour. Its course was directly for the steeple of the W. M. Church. The Professor at once perceived the danger, and could have avoided it by throwing out a bag of ballast, which would have given him sufficient buoyancy to have passed over the steeple, but unfortunately the square below was crowded with thousands of spectators, and a bag of sand thrown out would have crushed some person below. The sand was thrown out in small quantities, and the balloon swept upward and onward, but unfortunately not swerving from its dangerous direction. It became apparent that the balloon would strike the spire, the watching, anxious, breathless multitude awaiting the shock with compressed lips and blanched cheeks. With a tremendous rush the Atlantic struck the apex of the spire, and in another instant parted in twain. At the same moment the basket containing the daring aeronaut rushed against the spire some 20 feet below. Seeing, as it were, instant death before him, Prof. Squires threw one hand forward to avert as far as possible the shock, at the same time allowing his body to sway in the opposite direction. The crash of the collision sounded over the square, now silent as the grave. As the balloon collapsed and the gas escaped it was seen that the netting had caught on the point of the spire. A moment of breathless suspense; Squires was not seen to move a muscle. A whisper ran round—the collision had killed him! Then a slight movement, and the basket began to slip. It was evident that the netting was giving way. Women grew white with terror; brave men trembled. There at a height of 80 feet above the earth was a fellow being hanging by a few slender threads above and around him the glittering steeple sheeted with tin, below the cold stone battlements of the tower, on which to fall was instant death. A pause, and the basket had evidently been arrested in its downward course. Squires was seen to grasp the netting. Hope rose; he might be saved.

The moment he struck the spire there was a rush for ladders and ropes. Without number were the plans suggested to save him from death. But at this moment brave men were clambering up the inside of the grim church tower, determined to save a human life. A small window directly below the eaves of the tower opened directly beneath where the basket was suspended, but unfortunately it was very contracted, and it did not seem possible for a man by any means to squeeze through the aperture. But in a few seconds a man thrust his head through the window, and a board was pushed out of the lower portion of the opening, the end on the inside being held by men within. Then began a struggle; it was apparent that a man was endeavoring to crawl through the narrow hole out upon the board. The clothes were torn from his person in the attempt, but inch by inch he gained, and at last was seated on the board directly beneath the basket. The situation was one of great danger. Should the netting give way, the basket in its descent would catch the daring man and hurl him together with Squires into eternity. At his appearance there was a cheer that made the welkin ring again. The heroic man who thus risked his life to save a fellow being in distress was Arthur Osment. It was seen when Osment stood up that he could only reach to the bottom of the basket, and that he could not assist Squires from his perilous position.

The main body of the network had caught on the northern side of the spire, only two or three small cords having passed around the other side, and these when the basket slipped became slack. The least motion on the part of Squires would have precipitated him upon the stone steps below.

Osment spoke to Squires, who requested him to place his shoulder underneath; he did this, being done Squires caught hold of a slight oval projection on the spire, which offered a slight hold, and thus helped to support the basket.

At this instant Mr Andrew Stevenson appeared at the opening in the spire above Squire. The opening consists of a small trap door, and was not discovered for some time. Another cheer went up as Stevenson came out upon the spire, reached down a hand and firmly grasped the aeronaut and slowly drew him up to a place of safety. The suspense was over and Squires was saved.

Stevenson displayed great presence of mind and courage, and deserves well the praise that was showered upon him. On Squires observing a person above him he inquired: "Can you hold me?" Stevenson replied: "I can lift you if you weigh a ton," evidently the right man was in the right place.

We learn from Professor Squire that when thrown against the spire he was rendered insensible for a moment or two, but recovered his senses on hearing some person shout to him from the inside of the steeple. His injuries consist of contusion of his side and a bruised knee. The Professor is without doubt a brave man, and displayed coolness, firmness and judgment while in his perilous position. The accident was caused solely by the current of air, which could not be ascertained from the ground, and no discredit reflects on Mr Squires.

THURMAN FOR PRESIDENT.—Washington, July 12.—Since the controversy between Senator Gordon of Georgia and an editor of the Atlanta Herald on the political situation, in which great prominence was given to the prospective chance of Senator Thurman as Democratic nominee for next President, the press generally through the South have expressed a decided preference for Thurman, and believe he will receive the support of that section of the country in the next nominating Convention.

By a decree of June 7, 1874, the President of the French Republic gives a gold medal to Captain John Ross, of the American ship Hamilton, of Boston, for aid rendered to the French ship Eugenie at sea.

The stone baptismal font for Grace (Episcopal) Church, donated by an Eastern lady, has arrived and been set up in the Church. It is very neat one. We hope it may be often used.

A large number of names are on the petition for the commutation of the sentence of Gerrand [illegible], now [illegible] imprisonment. Among the names are many leading citizens of Marion county.

The number of school children in Clatsop county is [illegible]. The last order of the State Board of School Commissioners allowed [illegible] at [illegible] coin and $[illegible] in currency. The rate per scholar is 66 to 72 coin, and 1 to 63-100 currency.

The mail between Astoria and Forest Grove, overland, arrives and departs with regularity, but it is reported to be a terrible hard route to travel. The carrier had to foot it for about 25 miles, leaving his horse behind him, on the first trip last week.

A Polk county man has a pet deer which he first caught while it was sleeping in the fence corner. The Salem Record says the fence was a stake and rider, but that makes no difference—you can catch them asleep in any other kind of a corner just as well.

The Pioneer Oil Company has engaged about 8,000 acres of the flax seed crop, about 6,000 acres of which is in Marion, Benton and Lane counties. From the present outlook this year's crop will fully average fifteen bushels to the acre. Most of the seed sown is the Bombay or Calcutta variety, which is free from lint.

On Wednesday of this week, as Mr James Imbrie was driving a span of horses attached to a buggy across Johnson's bridge near Hillsboro, the team went through. One of the horses was seriously crippled and the buggy somewhat damaged. Mr Imbrie escaped unhurt.

THE BURIAL OF COCHISE

A private letter received in Boston from an officer at Camp Bowie, Arizona Territory, and dated June 13th, gives the following interesting particulars of the death and burial of Cochise, the noted Indian chief: "Cochise, the great war chief of the Chiricahua Apaches, in [illegible], died on the 9th inst. of dyspepsia. He had been sick for about six weeks, and was reduced to a mere skeleton. He had an idea that he was bewitched, and in order to break the spell the war chiefs and others under the direction of his medicine man kept up all the noise they could make by singing and drumming on beef hides stretched over sticks so as to make something like a drum, night and day, during his whole sickness. He said the spirits of the white men that he had killed were haunting him. There is little doubt that his disease originated from his drinking tizwin, which is made from ground corn fermented, and drunk in large quantities on an empty stomach. Indians frequently fast forty eight hours before indulging, that the liquor may have the desired effect. He has been a sufferer ever since he came on the reservation. Cochise's funeral was quite an expensive affair. The morning after his death he was washed and painted in war style, placed on his favorite horse, one of his chiefs getting up behind to hold him on, his four most noted sub-chiefs preceding his family, and others of his tribe following him. They marched twelve miles to his grave, no one but those who were of the tribe's blood being allowed to attend. The grave was very large. On the bottom were laid blankets, then he was rolled up in a pair of very handsome blankets which had only arrived a few days before his death, being a present from the Indian contractors, Messrs Hooper & Co. They weighed forty two pounds and had his name woven into the texture. You can imagine they were nice to be of that weight. The sides of the grave were walled up about three feet with stone. His rifle and arms, as well as other articles of value, were laid beside him. Above his body were placed more blankets, then mescal poles resting on the walls of his grave, covering these were skins to prevent dirt falling through, then the grave was filled with stones and dirt. His favorite horse was shot within 200 yards of his grave, another horse was killed about one mile away, and a third animal was shot about two miles distant. This was done with the idea that he will find a horse when he needs it in the spirit land. The family and relatives destroyed all the clothing that they had, and the tribe destroyed all the stores that they had to eat, so that they were without food for about forty eight hours. His son Tonza succeeds him. He is a very large Indian, but quite young, and a great friend of the whites. So far he gets along very well, but the agent says that on the war path he would have no difficulty, but thinks on the reservation he may occasionally have a little trouble settling points with some of the older sub chiefs, as all chiefs lose influence on reservations."

THE EGYPTIAN SUPREME COURT.—Hon. Victor Barringer, of North Carolina, ex-member of Congress and ex-rebel General, has been appointed by President Grant the American member of the Supreme Court to be established by the Khedive of Egypt, and to have jurisdiction in all international cases. Its members are to be nominated by Great Britain, France and the United States, and will rank next to the Khedive's family. General Barringer was one of the Commissioners selected to revise and codify the laws of the United States.

THE TERRITORIES

July 10th was so ordered at Lewiston [illegible] in city [illegible] in the shade. Whew!

H. H. Acton has resigned the editorship of the Walla Walla Spirit of the West. His successor is not announced.

The Walla Walla post office has been raised to a second class office, and the salary of Mrs Smith is thereby increased considerably.

The Dayton W. T. woolen mills have purchased 70,000 pounds of wool so far this season, having the liberal price of 25 cents per pound.

Two fine schooners are being built at Port Ludlow for parties in San Francisco. They are of about 150,000 feet lumber capacity and said to be fine models.

The timbers for the railroad leading out from Wallula were started down the Grande Ronde river too late in the season and will not reach their destination till next year.

The Fred Queen, Capt Burns, will sail from Port Ludlow on Tuesday next laden with lumber for San Francisco. The Northwest sails for same port from Port Madison on Saturday next.

The Fourth of July was observed in Lewiston by the usual salutes, the reading of the Declaration of Independence by L. B. True, and an oration by Hon. W. C. Whitson, at the court house.

The Lewiston Signal of the 11th inst. says: Bishop Morris and Rev. Mr Wells held service at the Court House last Tuesday evening. Mrs Dr Kelly and Mrs J. Kester, together with their children, were baptized.

Last Tuesday two insane men were conveyed to Steilacoom from King and Kitsap counties. The one from King was a Mr Nagel, an old resident of some twenty-one years of said county. The man from Kitsap had been at work in Mr Meig's employ. Name unknown.

An Indian belonging to the Skokomish reservation was killed near Seabeck on the 4th. It is thought, though the body was not discovered till last Friday. He had some $40 to $50, and some of his own tribe are suspected of the crime of killing him for the same, as it was missing.

The people of Port Townsend feel very jubilant over the proposed removal of the troops from San Juan to the old garrison at that place. Next week is set for the time for the transfer. The old garrison is being put in thorough repair for their reception. This change will put greenbacks in circulation among our Port Townsend friends.

Last Sunday Deputy U. S. Marshal Coburn arrested Joe Craig, a half breed, charged with the killing of an Indian on the Lapwai road the week before. He was brought before Commissioner Adams at Lewiston and discharged from custody, it appearing that neither the United States nor Territorial courts had jurisdiction in cases where an Indian committed an offense against another of the same tribe.

On Monday last, at Port Orchard, Mr H. B. Emery, school teacher at Port Madison, met with a serious accident. It appears that that gentleman and Sheriff Williams of Kitsap county, were then starting on a hunt through the woods, when Mr Emery, in lifting his gun from the boat, accidentally discharged it, and lodged the entire load in his right arm above the elbow, fearfully lacerating it and destroying the artery.

A letter from Warrens, I. T., says: "A few companies of whites have been busy in ground sluicing where prospects are favorable, and will soon commence cleaning up from the bed rock. Opinions vary among old miners here respecting the comparative yield of the placers this year with the past. Some think the yield will be greater, and some that it will be less. The close of the mining season will determine the truth of the matter."

A letter from the Yakima mines dated June 24th says: "The miners on the Peshastin and a tributary of it called Nigger Creek are making fair wages—from $3 to $6 per day. The mines on this side of the range, on the Swock and Yakima, are variable. A good deal of mining outside of discovery has ceased, the men have become discouraged and have gone prospecting in other quarters, while the discovery boys are sometimes doing remarkably well. Week before last they (six men) took out $500. One piece weighed $184 67, another $34, and from that down to $6. It was nearly all coarse gold. Then the week following they did not make to exceed a dollar per day to the hand. Old miners are sorely puzzled as to where that pay streak extends. It has been searched for very diligently and perseveringly, but it cannot be found. The supposition now is that it is way under the hill—that the old bed of the creek is nowhere near the place it now runs. They are satisfied that there is pay in the old channel, but quite a number have despaired finding its location and have given it up with hope of striking it rich somewhere else. Such is mining life. The pay will be more regular on the Yakima bars, but the water is still too high for successful mining there. Two and a half to three cents to the pan is quite common on many of the river claims. An acquaintance informed me that he dipped down with his shovel where the water was nearly four feet deep, and in four pans he washed out eleven cents of gold—that the gold was weighed and not guessed at."

BRITISH COLUMBIA

Two Victorians killed a large she panther near that city a few days ago.

The Point Atkinson lighthouse has been finished and accepted by the Government authorities.

H. Jerome, Esq., has been elected Corresponding Secretary for Nanaimo to the French Benevolent Society of Victoria.

The British Naval and Military Gazette says: "A screw sloop and composite gunboat will be required for service in the Pacific, to relieve the Reindeer and Boxer respectively."

In bravely attempting to save another man from injury from the descending boxes in the Douglas Pit, James Stone, a lad of some 14 years, was himself pretty badly hurt. Great praise is given the lad on account of his conduct.

The steamer Beaver, the first that ever turned a wheel on the Pacific coast nearly forty years ago, is being repaired in Victoria and is quite a curiosity. It is not known to what use the Hudson Bay Company, her owners, intend her for, but she is a very old-fashioned craft and as sound as the day she was built.

The Colonist says: Lieut.-Col. Powell has just completed a tour of the central portion of the Mainland, and it has more resembled the triumphal march of a Roman conqueror than the official tour of an Indian Commissioner. Think of being escorted several miles on his way by a guard of honor composed of 300 Indian braves on horseback. Everywhere the Commissioner appears to have been well received, and everywhere the results of his visit appear to have been satisfactory, the chiefs expressing the best of feeling toward the Government of Canada and toward their white neighbors, and delight at finding that they were not forgotten.

The Toronto Globe, of June 25th, says: "It is we understand the intention of the Government to lose no time in commencing the great work of opening up communications with the Northwest Territory. A line will, as speedily as possible, be located from Thunder Bay to the small lakes, probably Lac des Milles Lacs, which, when constructed, will greatly facilitate transportation over the Fort Garry route, and form a section in the road that is ultimately to connect Fort Garry and Thunder Bay. It has already been announced by the Premier that the road from Pembina to Fort Garry will be put under contract as soon as the bondholders of the American line are able to proceed with the construction of that road, so as to connect our line with their system."

The New York Herald says: "J. A. MacGahan, our correspondent to Khiva, has received from the Russian Government the cross of the Russian military Order of St. Stanislaus, with the swords crossed and inscribed with the words, 'For Bravery.'"

THE CHICAGO FIRE DEPARTMENT

A Chicago correspondent of the New York Times, speaking of the fire which destroyed the wholesale boot and shoe establishment of D. Wells & Co., June 3, says:

The truth of the matter is, our fire department is not well managed, nor has it ever been. Political favorites have been promoted over good men, and ward caucuses determine who shall protect our properties. The worst feature of the Wells fire is the authoritative statement that a number of firemen helped themselves to new pairs of boots. They left their work and fitted themselves with new brogans. When accused of the theft the men had no thing to say in extenuation of their crime. The matter was brought to the notice of the Board of Fire Commissioners and there it has rested for over a month. Aldermen and other politicians are opposed to having their friends tried on such flimsy pretexts, and it seems as if the Board dare not give the matter thorough honest investigation.

SPEAKER BLAINE IN SEARCH OF AN ISSUE

Mr Speaker Blaine in response to the announcement of his renomination writes a letter [illegible] to the men of the Convention which [illegible] remarkable document considering the circumstances He stops but the briefest space of time upon the formalities of acknowledging the compliment [illegible] this nomination to the seventh successive term as Representative in Congress [illegible] he at once into an elaborate review of the political situation His very first remark is that the resolutions adopted by the Convention are so generally acceptable to the people of the district that no issue will be made on the matters embraced in them This is a happy illustration of the truth of what we have been urging for some time namely that the issues that formerly divided the people are past and gone and the party platform of to-day whether Democratic or Republican has nothing in it upon which the opposite party can take issue

But then Mr Blaine discusses at length the proposition to restore the treaty of reciprocity between the United States and Canada, which he opposes strenuously asserting that it would be a game of give and take in which all the giving would be on our side and all the taking on the side of the Dominion

It is difficult to perceive the necessity of keeping up the party lines and dividing the people amongst themselves, if the platform of the great parties presents no issue on which there is any division of sentiment in the public mind And it may be for want of some live issue to make the canvass on, and because of the failure of the Convention to furnish one that Mr Blaine entered upon the discussion of the reciprocity question and took grounds upon which there will not be any want of disagreement, even within the ranks of his own party At all events it is pretty sure that outside of Maine, whether within that State or not, any gentleman of Mr. Blaine's standing can get up a discussion on that subject without going outside his own party Possibly Republicanism has at last attained to that interesting stage of its development which was reached by the Democracy some three or four years ago, and in which it has a separate set of principles for every latitude Possibly it has arrived at that period when it can afford to use the patent adjustable platforms for which the Democracy have been noted and ridiculed for six years past If such is the case, the best thing that can be done with the organization is to shelve it till its managers can find something in the living, active forces of the times upon which to base an excuse for its further preservation

A WHOLESOME LAW DISREGARDED

In 1862, when there was no outside pressure of railway influence brought to bear upon the Legislature of Oregon, a law was passed declaring that no person should be at the same time time a stockholder in any railway company and an owner in steamship or steamboat companies. It was intended by this law to make it impossible for any man to obtain the control of both the rivers and the railways, or hold a monopoly of the San Francisco carrying trade, through the instrumentality of railway enterprises The intention was beneficent, and the legislation was wise, as subsequent events have demonstrated But the same events that have shown this have also shown that for some reason, we know not why, this wholesome restraint upon the rapacity of monopolists has been disregarded and violated upon a scale almost unlimited, and in the most open, notorious and defiant manner We refer to the fact that Mr Ben Holladay, the principal owner in the line of steamships plying between this city and San Francisco, the principal owner of a line of steamboats navigating the Wallamet, Columbia and Yamhill rivers, is also the principal, and practically the only stockholder in both the railways leading to Portland The very thing the Legislature declared should not be done, is done openly and the very consequences which it was hoped to prevent by the law in question, have followed the violation of the law, and have cost the industries of this infant commonwealth hundreds of thousands of dollars Thanks to the opposition on the rivers, the evil has been partially remedied of late, but in many of its most oppressive features it still exists If the law referred to is not sufficient to meet the case, or if the duty of enforcing it is not specially devolved upon the Prosecuting Attorneys, the defect should be cured by the Legislature soon to convene, to the end that the people may have that protection which was intended to be guaranteed to them by the law This is a subject of the gravest import in ways that are scarcely perceived at the first glance We shall refer to the facts more at length hereafter

"FREE TRADE AND SAILORS' RIGHTS."

The Democratic State Convention of Maine has declared unequivocally in favor of free trade Now wouldn't it be an interesting thing for its example to be emulated by the party in the other States? How delightfully harmonious would be the Convention which should attempt that performance for the Democrats of Pennsylvania, for instance! And then just think what overwhelming majorities would be rolled up for the Democratic party in the Keystone State or in New York or Massachusetts, for instance In fact the idea of throwing a vast multitude of our operatives out of employment, shutting down our home manufactories, and raising by direct taxation the $200,000,000 which we now obtain annually from duties on imported goods is one that can not fail to find welcome throughout the country It is clear that the unterrified in the State of Maine have struck the key note of popular sentiment at last and that the grand old reminiscence yclept the Democratic party by taking up this note and sounding it through all the land may yet retrieve all the misfortunes of the past True they have tried it in the West occasionally and the result has not been the most encouraging, but they have tried it only on a small scale Oregon and Maine the two geographical extremes of the Republic having led off the rest have only to fall into line and the triumph of the Democracy is secured "Free trade and sailors rights," direct taxation, general protection of manufactures, [illegible] of industries and degradation of the poor laborer these are the things [illegible] which are to be christened [illegible] When that [illegible] shall come there will be no failure [illegible] in finding [illegible] to divide the people

BEGIN NOW

We trust our readers and especially those of them who have the honor to be members elect of the Legislature will take no exception to our repeated mention of the importance of their having their work well in hand when the session opens It can not be too strongly impressed upon their minds that during the short session provided by the Constitution and in the midst of the excitement and confusion that inevitably attend upon the pressure of so many different interests it will be impossible for much legislation to be well and carefully done which has not been thoroughly digested previously Members who have measures of importance on hand which they desire to see enacted, may rest assured that the main condition of their success will be their own preparation They must be prepared to explain every section in every possible view that can be taken of it They must be ready to answer questions on the floor and in the committee rooms and on the street if need be That is the sort of industry that is better in the race of life than extraordinary talent; and it is above all talent in a legislative body

Oregon needs some good careful legislation as badly now as she ever did There is a cry for more economical government That demand is just, and it should be complied with It is for the Legislature to say whether it shall be The affairs of this State can be administered cheaply, for they have been! But no careless, slipshod legislating will meet the case An evil that has grown up so gradually, and has its roots in so many diverse interests, is not to be eradicated but by careful hands And then there are some other matters that demand particular attention. A good, well-considered registry law, and other affirmative legislation to prevent frauds in the elections, are greatly needed But these can never be devised and perfected in the rush of the session. Take time by the forelock, or you are likely to make the session a farce

On the 6th of July, 750 Mormon immigrants mostly Scandinavians, arrived at New York on their way to Salt Lake. They were in charge of eighteen missionaries who had gathered them together from among the uneducated people of Europe Of course these converts after reaching Utah will become instruments in the hands of the infamous autocrat who makes religion a trade and the lives of men and women merchandise Under the guise of religion these people will be made to support the hideous hierarchy of Mormonism in trampling upon the laws of the country and defying the moral sense of Christendom

The Baltimore Gazette of the 3d instant has an article exceeding nine columns in length on the past, present and future of the Monumental City exhibiting the various advantages of Baltimore as a commercial metropolis The showing is certainly a very flattering one concerning both its natural and artificial conveniences in the way of access by land and sea, which constitute the chief elements in the problem of any city's future

SOME PLAIN TALK

In urging the claims of Idaho quartz mines upon the capitalists of Portland the [illegible] Signal uses some very plain talk, which we republish that those who are interested may see if they be true The Signal says

A city like Portland cannot long flourish and be prosperous, though it possesses capital while enterprises throughout the surrounding country tributary to it languish for want of the necessary capital to properly push them forward and make them productive of more wealth Portland has enjoyed a remarkable degree of prosperity heretofore and has been made the recipient of much of her present wealth through the almost spontaneous productions of the country around her of such productions as have been gathered by labor alone without the outlay of much capital and skill But these days have nearly gone by and now the country demands a different kind of effort to place it in a position to pour out its treasure into the lap of cities with a steady and unfailing sufficiency Our Portland men do not seem to fully understand this fact If her citizens like those of San Francisco would make use of a portion of her surplus capital in making developments of the country tributary to their city they would find that her resources for accumulation in wealth would be doubly increased The old proverb says, The [illegible] that scattereth, and yet increaseth, and the [illegible] that withholdeth [illegible] it tendeth to poverty. If the Oregonian and the other papers of that city would enter the field for the proper development of the country east of the Cascades with the same zeal and earnest positiveness which they employ in their political campaigns they could produce some effect upon the drowsy sleeping minds who control capital in that city The facts in the position of the country east of the Cascades are sufficient to warrant earnestness of effort to awaken the man of capital to their importance in a growing financial point of view and if these journals will turn their attention to these facts and carefully study them in relation to their bearing upon the wealth and prosperity of the city of Portland they will find time for many an urgent appeal to their patrons for investment in this direction If any doubt is experienced upon the above let them visit in person, or cause competent observers to visit and examine the various sources of wealth of this country which now lie almost dormant for want of the capital to properly develop them

THE SEA OF SAHARA.

A GRAND PROJECT FOR TRANSFORMING THE GREAT AFRICAN DESERT FROM AN OCEAN OF SAND INTO AN OCEAN OF WATER.

Not satisfied with what it has thus accomplished in the way of railroads, steamboats, photographs, telegraphs, ocean cables and spectrum analysis, the restless genius of man is in search of new triumphs over nature Having laid the Atlantic cable, built the Mont Cenis tunnel, what is there to prevent its making an ocean out of a desert? Why can it not create a sea and modify the climate of the surrounding country There is no very good reason why this cannot be done in one quarter of the world at least and that is in Northern Africa and it is accordingly proposed to put a sea there at no distant future South of the province of Constantine and of the Djebel Aures chain of mountains in Northern Africa lie the [illegible] or vast swamps of the Sahara [illegible] chotts cover an immense surface That of Melrir is 150 square leagues in area The Melrir [illegible] communicates with another [illegible] and there are others all the way [illegible] the gulf of Gabes, a distance of 80 leagues [illegible] of these are the [illegible] Djerid The eastern bank of the [illegible] is only 18 miles from the Mediterranean [illegible] which are the chotts are covered with a thick layer of salts of magnesia The bed of the chott is below the level of the Mediterranean Melrir is [illegible] feet below it [illegible] is 120 feet below it. It is supposed that the [illegible] continues all the way to the Gulf of Gabes [illegible] from the Mediterranean to the [illegible] it would create an [illegible] It is likely that such a sea may be [illegible] because everything goes to show that there was a sea there before and that the Sahara desert was its bed The expense of cutting the canal would not be great. It is estimated that it would not [illegible] The proposed sea will [illegible] [illegible] would be benefited by the [illegible]

THE MORDAUNT DIVORCE SUIT.—[illegible] The House of Lords were called upon to answer [illegible] to the Divorce Court [illegible] chapters [illegible] a certain limit of progress [illegible] to form any answer [illegible] The House of Lords [illegible] were divided [illegible] Court was [illegible] to prevent [illegible] proceeding with his suit under such circumstances In deciding the Lords have concurred with the majority of the Judges before whom the Mordaunt case was brought that is to say it was [illegible] to count the opinion of Mr Baron Martin who had retired before the time came for delivering his judgment. In the court below Lord Penzance and Mr Justice Keating were of opinion that the insanity operated as a bar to the [illegible] the suit Lord Chief Baron Kelly took an opposite view When the Judges were consulted by the Lords Justices Denman [illegible] Lush and Mr Baron Martin concurred with the judgment of the Chief Baron and Justices Brett and Keating with that of the court below The question thus so much debated was one of strict law and fortunately so, for the hardship on each side was so equally balanced that there might have been some difficulty in deciding between them It seems not less cruel to call upon a wife naturally insane to establish her innocence than to bind a husband to a wife, from whom he might otherwise have freed himself merely because, besides being immoral she has become mad The suit of Sir Charles Mordaunt for divorce will now therefore proceed

BUELL THE UNFORTUNATE CORRESPONDENT.—I feel sorry for Buell the ex Washington correspondent of the St Louis Republican He came [illegible] ambitious for fame and in his anxiety to accomplish that desirable end in the shortest possible time he has gone [illegible] all sorts of trouble After his affair with Senator Chandler one might have thought that he would have learned the proper amount of prudence, but it seems not He took up a hearsay purported report of a conversation with Senator Schurz giving his views upon the political situation and worked it up in the shape of a bona fide interview between the Senator and himself I do not know whether the expressions of opinion were really Schurz's or not but at any rate he would have never uttered them if he thought they were going to be made public The result was that he was obliged to draw up the interview in order to avoid compromising himself This ruined Buell and the Republican provoked at his recklessness recalled him But the worst in store for Buell seems to be yet coming The Grand Jury of the United States Circuit Court has found a true bill against him for libel and defamation of the character of Senator Chandler. A detective left to-day for St Louis to bring Buell on here for trial This will be not exactly the summer trip he would like to take and the result promises to be very disagreeable There is no doubt that he cannot produce the slightest proof of the truth of his charge Of course it is not a question whether Old Zach is too good or not to be found drunk in the Senate or anywhere else he chooses but whether Buell can prove the special instance —Wash Cor Philadelphia Press

COURTSHIP OF AUSTRALIAN SAVAGES.—Among the aboriginal blacks of Australia courtship as the precursor of marriage is unknown When a young warrior is desirous of marrying a wife he generally obtains one by giving in exchange for her his sister or some other female relative of his own but if there should happen to be no eligible damsel disengaged in the tribe to which he belongs then he hovers around the encampment of some other blacks until he gets an opportunity of obtaining a view of their females whom perhaps he has seen and admired when attending one of the feasts or corroborees His mode of paying his addresses is simple and efficacious With a blow of the waddy he stuns the object of his affections and drags her insensible body away to some retired spot, whence as she recovers her senses, he brings her home to his gunyah Another method with wife stealers is to ascertain the camp fire beside which the girl whom he covets sleeps When he gains the knowledge he requires he creeps into the camp on some dark windy night and stretching out his spear inserts its barbed point amongst her thick flowing locks, turning it slowly around some of her hair becomes entangled with it then with a sudden jerk she is aroused from her slumbers and as her eyes open she feels the point of another weapon pressed against her throat She neither faints nor screams She knows well that the slightest attempt to escape or alarm will cause her instant death so like a sensible woman she makes a virtue of necessity and rising silently she follows her captor to begin a life of [illegible] from which she is not released till death

MONKEYS IN LADIES' EARS.—The Cathedral Herald of Geneva contains the [illegible] There is one item of the present style of fashion which I must notice writes a Paris correspondent and that is the extraordinary notion that now everybody is wearing ear-rings that represent animals and implements Thus you see pending from the ears monkeys, guinea pigs, lizards, chandeliers with candles in them, bird cages filled with birds, [illegible] turtles, bowls [illegible] Gold stirrups in the ears are also very popular [illegible] so pretty and the fashion can make it so The French who justly pride themselves on their taste say that these eccentricities come from over the seas [illegible] that the Americans introduced them into Paris [illegible] Americans however they say it was the English [illegible] the French [illegible] that it was neither Americans nor English who first wore such atrocities The new styles of head dress for ladies resembles a pig tail [illegible] an English innovation and I remember having seen it two years ago when on a flying visit to London All the hair is [illegible] the top of the head and then [illegible] turned loosely back or it is plaited, but in either case it falls on the neck and the ends are tied together with a colored ribbon [illegible] embroidery has become quite [illegible] Our women [illegible] dazzling from the quantity of jet beads they carry that one can scarcely look at them without winking

THE NEW GAME OF WAR.—At the International Congress to be held at Brussels [illegible] Punch [illegible] Oaks Day [illegible] Derby Day [illegible] Royal Albert Hall or the Crystal Palace [illegible] Sydenham [illegible] Great Britain [illegible]

A party of surveyors [illegible] to operate in Ochoco Valley

WORSE THAN THE BUG.—The Rockland Journal of the 4th inst says Dr Wiggin had a call to visit a patient at the north part of the city yesterday and found him suffering from a fearful eruption covering him from head to foot The gums of his mouth were spongy and the teeth loosened The cause of this was [illegible] being troubled with bedbugs procured a powder for their extermination from a druggist in New York The mode of operation was to throw the powder into the seams and crevices with a small bellows The powder was nothing but corrosive sublimate and the man [illegible] with the powder flying about him [illegible] Dr Wiggin informs [illegible] it will kill the [illegible]

CITY.

HISTORIC CANE AND SWORD.—Mr Seth L Pope of this city deposited in the vault of Wells Fargo & Co yesterday for safe keeping a sword and cane around which cluster an interest and association both historic and ancestral The cane and sword were brought over from England in the month of October in the year 1622, by three brothers all bearing the name of Pope One of these brothers named Seth took the articles and kept them He settled at Fair Haven where he died From the date of his death the sword and cane have descended in a regular line from father to son until the present day During the fall of 1869 Capt Pope now residing at St Helens went East on a trip and while there was presented with the cane and sword by his father He brought them [illegible] and on his death these [illegible] relics will become the property of Seth L Pope Jr The cane is made of ivory surmounted with a handsome head and tipped with silver The cane is finely polished but age has much discolored it The sword is a rapier [illegible] much worn during the 16th century It is about thirty inches long with a point sharp as a needle, and has a hilt made of silver curiously engraved Age has corroded the blade and the leather scabbard encasing it is broken into several pieces [illegible] Think of it reader A sword and cane 252 years old

THE WRONG WOMAN.

From Mrs Lucy Stuart, concerning whose [illegible] experience we published a long account in yesterday s issue, we have received the following note, which will best explain itself. Mrs Stuart says

I am sorry to spoil your romantic story which appeared in your issue of yesterday morning headed "Child abducted" and it has excessively annoyed me to be brought before the public in this way Mrs Hannay's sorrowful story does not belong to me (Mrs Stuart.) A few words of explanation will account for this story going the rounds of the [illegible] About eight or nine years ago in the same office with myself, was a young English woman who was divorced from her husband who had stolen away her child Mrs Hannay died in New York about a year after the abduction of her child Her utter friendlessness touched my sympathies and she left some pictures and a letter in my charge before she died, to be given to her child whom she was sure would make inquiries after her mother as soon as she was old enough to do so She was right as a few weeks ago I received a letter enclosing the advertisement of Lilly Hannay for her mother I have written to her the sorrowful intelligence of her mother's death The editor of the Eastern paper has confounded Mrs. Stuart and Mrs Hannay, owing to my sending him my address when I moved, simply saying If any one inquires for Mrs Hannay, write to Mrs L Stuart etc He evidently has made inquiries after Mrs Stuart, supposing it was Mrs H and it was not hard to ascertain where I have been or what I have been doing having been a public city missionary for the last seven years, and am in no way connected with Mrs Hannay except in the bonds of Christian charity. I hope I have made this story plain and in conclusion I beg to thank the reporter for his sympathetic interest in me and wish him better success the next time he is on the look out for an item

Mrs L [illegible] STUART

Young America talks base ball the politician thinketh of the next election the dispenser of the ardent is happy since the license has been reduced the crusaders have discontinued their warfare on the saloons and the merchant awaits the next customer During the "heated term" a suit of light clothing is in order Where to get the desired article is the question That is easily answered Beck & Waldman can provide what is wanted Interview them on the subject

EXAMINATION IN THE GRAMMAR SCHOOL.

The following communication was received by the Board of Directors at the last meeting It was read and placed on file and also a vote of thanks tendered to Dr Atkinson for the invaluable services rendered by him in the recent examination of pupils in the Grammar Department for promotion to the High School

PORTLAND July [illegible] 1874

To the Honorable Board of Directors of School District No 1—GENTLEMEN During the first week I attended and united in the examination of the pupils [illegible] as requested by you a few weeks ago [illegible] The review of studies has been more thorough and more satisfactory than that of February last The classes including the second first and high school grades have for the most part had written questions and have returned written answers without the aid of text books [illegible] The value of this method appears in cultivating exactness and self reliance Written questions conform to the phraseology of the text books and to the mental habits of the pupils while oral questions often introduce new and confusing terms For these and other reasons it seems desirable to extend this method as far as possible in all the departments

The candidates for the high school were fairly tested in ten studies by their numbered papers their corresponding names having been enclosed in an envelope and laid away so that the Committee might be free from bias or prejudice

It is a gratifying fact that of forty seven sets of papers the average credit of seventy per cent and over was given to twenty three or four numbers thus authorizing them to enter the high school at the beginning of the next term in September Some who failed came very near success, reaching over 60 and even 69 per cent

It is well for these pupils and all others and their parents also to see how they stand in every study It will guide the parent and stimulate the child to make up deficiencies and move on and up more surely the next time

This thorough review at the end of every five months has awakened the scholars in the higher grades to work harder than ever before and has made the teachers task more pleasant and profitable

A spirit of obedience and good order seems to prevail in all the school commendable both to teacher and pupil

If a criticism may be indulged I would suggest that descriptive geography be more accurate and more extensive and that the orthography of names the use of capitals and punctuation be rigidly required Knowledge extends to all the world and facts are gleaned from every part of it Exact ideas of places and their conditions distinguish the intelligent from the ignorant as much as exactness in mathematics grammar or physiology and some minds are naturally as apt in the former as others are in the latter studies, and they deserve equal credit for success

The directors guardians and friends of our public schools in the city may well be cheered in view of their steady improvement

First quality not quantity has evidently been the motto of the instructors In this all wise educators agree

With such maxims and with such generous support as the citizens of Portland have ever been ready to give the schools while under their able corps of teachers and the efficient supervision of both the City and County Superintendents we see reason to hope that they will become models worthy of imitation in the State and neighboring Territories

Yours respectfully
G H ATKINSON

TERRIFIC STORM IN BALTIMORE

SINGULAR PHENOMENON ACCOMPANYING—THREE SMALL YACHTS CAPSIZED—A DOZEN PERSONS DROWNED

A special dispatch to the New York Times dated Baltimore, July 3 says

Just before sunset last evening a tremendous thunder storm broke over the city accompanied by a tornado and a remarkable meteorological phenomenon In the western suburbs a whirling cloud descended until it seemed to rest upon the earth and a darkness black as midnight, enveloped everything within its scope The cloud was circular and moved as if impelled by a cyclone that circled around its outer surface While it continued objects twenty feet distant were imperceptible, and a smell like burning wood pervaded the atmosphere This was caused by the incessant flashes of lightning which on the lines of railway assumed the form of moving balls of fire following each other in quick succession and casting a lurid blue glare through the darkness At one time within a space of 300 feet five of these balls of fire were counted at the same moment In Druid Hill Park two of the loftiest trees were riven from top to bottom by the lightning as clean as if they had been split by an axe A dozen houses were unroofed by the wind and on Light street wharf a shed was blown down under which a man named Jacob Dunn was sleeping and when discovered this morning he was found smothered to death under the ruins

On Chesapeake Bay the effect of the storm was more disastrous A great number of excursion steamers were caught in the tornado and two ladies died from absolute fright while the boats were laboring under the tremendous sea

JO-WENS OF NEVADA.—The Nevada press is circulating the following anecdote at the expense of Senator Jones

In the days when boiled shirts were a Sunday luxury the owners of those articles had their names stamped on the bands below the plaits, and as the fashion of vests was not tolerated at that time (this was not in the earlier years of George III) the name of a man could be easily ascertained by glancing at the waistband which was fully exposed to view On one occasion Mr Jones had attired himself hastily and in the hurry had put on a shirt stamped with the name of his room mate J Owens "Hello!" said a friend "you've borrowed a boiled shirt for a holiday" "Oh no" said Jones, "this is my shirt" "Well there's another man's name on it" pointing to the convincing proof "J Owens" But quick as flash when Jones saw his mistake, he turned it to his advantage "Oh this is the way our Welsh folks spell the family name J-o-w-e-n-s Jowens or Jones as you call it D'ye see"

GEN SHERMAN'S STAFF.—The staff of Gen Sherman includes six officers namely Gen Whipple and Cols Bacon, Audenreid Tourtelotte McCoy and Poe It is not certain the two last named will accompany the General to St Louis The Pope property in that city has been engaged as the headquarters

LIVER AND BLOOD DISEASES.

BY R V PIERCE M D

A healthy liver secretes each day about two and a half pounds of bile which contains a great amount of waste material taken from the blood When the liver becomes torpid or congested, it fails to eliminate this vast amount of noxious substance which therefore remains to poison the blood and be conveyed to every part of the system What must be the condition of the blood when it is receiving and retaining each day two and a half pounds of poison Nature tries to work off this poison through other channels and organs—the kidneys lungs skin etc—but these organs become overtaxed in performing this labor in addition to their natural functions and cannot long withstand the pressure but become variously diseased

The brain, which is the great electrical center of all vitality is unduly stimulated by the unhealthy blood which passes to it from the heart and it fails to perform its office healthfully Hence the symptoms of bile poisoning which are dullness headache incapacity to keep the mind on any subject, impairment of memory dizzy sleepy or nervous feelings gloomy forebodings and irritability of temper The blood itself being diseased as it forms the sweat upon the surface of the skin it is so irritating and poisonous that it produces discolored brown spots pimples blotches and other eruptions sores boils carbuncles and scrofulous tumors The stomach bowels and other organs cannot escape becoming affected sooner or later and we have as the result costiveness piles dropsy dyspepsia diarrhœa Other symptoms are common as bitter or bad taste in mouth internal heat palpitation teasing cough unsteady appetite choking sensation in throat bloating of stomach pain in side or about shoulders or back, coldness of extremities etc etc Only a few of the above symptoms are likely to be present in any case at one time The liver being the great depurating or cleansing organ of the system set this great housekeeper of our health at work and the foul corruptions which gender in the blood and rot out as it were the machinery of life are gradually expelled from the system For this purpose Dr Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery with very small doses of Dr Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets are preeminently the articles needed They cure every kind of humor from the worst scrofula to the common pimple blotch or eruption Great eating ulcers kindly heal under their mighty curative influence Virulent blood poisons that lurk in the system are by them robbed of their terrors and by their persevering and somewhat protracted use the most tainted systems may be completely renovated and built up anew Enlarged glands tumors and swellings dwindle away and disappear under the influence of these great resolvents

FRIDAY MORNING, JULY 17, 1874.

A BRAVE DOCTOR'S DEATH.

In 1868 the Government of Madras, India, inspired by the Governor, Lord Francis Napier, of Merchistoun, who temporarily succeeded the assassinated Viceroy, Lord Mayo, offered a large reward for the discovery of proper treatment for snake bites, and more especially for the almost invariably fatal puncture of the Cobra di capella, or hooded spectacle snake. Dr. Fayer, of Calcutta, and Dr. Shortt, of Madras, whose names have been frequently brought before the readers of American newspapers in connection with this subject, after a lengthy series of experiments, determined that caustic potash was, if not a specific, the best possible thing to be used. To them Dr. Rule, of the Madras army, civil surgeon at the fort and station of Vellore, in South Arcot, and a member of the special committee to investigate the properties of the cinchonin and other alkaloids developed in the recent cultivation of the cinchona officinalis on the Neilgherry Hills, as effective as, and more economical than, quinine, became an enthusiastic adherent. He extended his experiments to the treatment of persons bitten by dogs.

The cities and hamlets of India are infested with "pariah" dogs, waifs owning no masters, as wild, gaunt, hungry and vicious as the street boys of New York, who are as yet out of the school-ship or other restraining or training influences. Cases occurred daily in his practice, and always armed with caustic potash in his pockets, he saved indubitably scores of lives. One morning early he had ridden out for his usual constitutional, and was called to a very bad case of a lacerated wound inflicted by a rabid pariah. He emptied his bottle. As he was mounting his horse to return home another dog bit him. Drug stores are not at every corner in India. He was an hour's distance from any caustic potash. He had smoked all his cigars, and thought it better to gallop home rather than wait while some one smoked out a chillum of tobacco adulterated with bhang, or Indian hemp, and abominable spices, as affected by the pleasing beasts. He set spurs to his little pet Arab, which gamely sped on as if sympathizing with the peril of his master. The brave doctor knew it was too late, that his doom was sealed. The hot fever burned in his veins as he dismounted at his verandah. The Indian climate hurries on such catastrophes with fearful rapidity. Rule told his wife what had happened, left her in charge of a lady friend on a visit to them, called in his horror-striken orderlies, gave them full directions as to what to do with him, and then, under the watchful eyes of the men ordered to spring on him and bind him as soon as he should lose control, he sat down and calmly wrote an exhaustive analysis of his own case, folded it, sealed it, directed it to the ex-Chief Secretary of Government, then made his will and prepared for death, which, after several hours of fearful agony, mercifully relieved him. That man knew what he was about, and he left as his most precious legacy, although an alopathic physician, the homœopathic cure on the similia similibus curantur principle, the cure for hydrophobia—caustic potash.

A NOVEL SUIT.

A WIDOW BRINGS ACTION FOR $100,000 DAMAGES AGAINST CERTAIN OFFICERS OF THE KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS AND PHYSICIANS.

About three months ago, says the Louisville Courier-Journal, a musician named Frank Lamadrid died of heart disease, as the attendant physicians report, after being confined five days to his bed. A few days before taking sick he applied for membership in Boone Lodge, Knights of Pythias. His petition was accepted and he took the first degree. The following meeting night Lamadrid was admitted into full fellowship and became a Knight.

After his initiation he was called off to play with his band at a frolic on Jefferson street, and while playing on his instrument some time after midnight, he became suddenly ill and showed symptoms of fainting and asphyxia. Before daylight, some of his friends took him home and cared for him. During his illness he was attended by Drs. C. W. Kelly, W. C. Cox and a regular detail of his brethren from the Order. He died five days after he was taken sick.

His widow, however, has differed from the opinion of the physicians as to the cause of his death, and yesterday filed the following suit for damages in the sum of $100,000:

Jefferson Court of Common Pleas.—Maggie Lamadrid, plaintiff, vs W. C. Cox, Dr. C. W. Kelly, —— Sarles and Geo. C. Shadburne, defendants.—The plaintiff, Maggie Lamadrid, says that she is the widow of Frank Lamadrid. She says that on the — day of —, 187–, the defendants, W. C. Cox, C. W. Kelly, —— Sarles, George C. Shadburne and others to this plaintiff unknown, did in the city of Louisville beat, bruise and injure her said husband, that by reason of said beating, drugging, etc., he died, whereby she was and is deprived of the company, support and protection of her husband, and to her great damage. The plaintiff (Maggie Lamadrid) says that the defendants (W. C. Cox, C. W. Kelly, —— Sarles, Geo. Shadburne and others to this plaintiff unknown), on the —— day of ——, 187–, in the city of Louisville, did conspire together and persuade and induce Frank Lamadrid, the husband of the plaintiff, to join, become a member and be initiated into a certain secret society, commonly called Knights of Pythias—Boone Lodge—and that said defendants and others to her unknown, did beat, drag and bruise her said husband in going through their rites or their pretended rites; that by reason thereof he died, thereby depriving her of his support, care and protection, and that by reason of their said unlawful, cruel and wicked conduct she has been damaged $100,000; therefore she prays judgment for $100,000 damages and for all other proper relief.

A TEXAN DUEL.

TWO TEXANS EXCHANGE SHOTS.—THEY MEET ON THE BANK OF A RIVER—BOTH TAKE ADVANTAGE OF THE SITUATION.

A dispatch from Corsicana, Texas, of June [illegible] says: Quite a serious shooting affray occurred in this county last week between Mr. Harrington and his brother-in-law, Mr. Bogget, two well-known and respected citizens, between whom an old family feud had existed for some time. Harrington left his home shortly after dinner, and proceeded to the river to fish, leaving his rifle on the bank. He then descended the bluff to the water's edge. He carried with him a pistol to shoot the large fish if he should catch any. He had been fishing but a short time when he heard a noise above him, and looking up he beheld Bogget over him with an oar upraised to strike him, and who said: "Now, Harrington, d—n you, I've got you just where I want you, and you can't get away. I am between you and your rifle. You've been talking about my father long enough, and I am going to kill you." Harrington immediately raised his pistol and fired, the ball taking effect in Bogget's breast, ranging upward, and lodging in his left shoulder.

He immediately fell into the water. After floating around for some time, he begged Harrington to help him out, as he had already killed him. This Harrington consented to do, and after much trouble and hard work he succeeded in getting him to land and upon the bank. Bogget then said, "For God's sake run and get a doctor, for I am dying." Harrington immediately shouldered his shot-gun and started on a run. As soon as he had his back turned, Bogget reached for his rifle, and exclaimed, "Hold on, you've killed me, and I can't wait for a doctor to come, and I'll be d—d if you are going to get off so easy." He deliberately aimed and shot at Harrington, the ball striking him in the side and passing nearly through. Harrington then exclaimed, "God d—n you, I've shot you once, and I'll shoot you again," and shot a load of shot into Bogget's right arm. He then walked all the way home and told his friends the whole circumstance.

Bogget was found lying on the ground, where he had received the last shot. He was at once conveyed to his home and medical aid summoned. Strange to say, both are still alive, and Harrington is in a fair way of recovery, while hopes are entertained of Bogget's recovery. Both tell the same identical tale, even to the minute. It is altogether the coolest affair ever known to our citizens.—Galveston News.

The population of the city is now 292,100; valuation, $765,818,713.

FINANCE AND COMMERCE.

THURSDAY EVENING, July 16, 1874.

Gold in New York, 110.

Portland Legal Tenders, buying 89¼, selling 90½.

Gold bars are quotable at 725@750 fine.

Exchange on New York, ½ per cent. premium for currency, and one per cent. premium for gold.

Exchange on San Francisco at ¾ of 1 per cent. premium.

Wheat in Liverpool, by mail advices from San Francisco, 12s 1@12s 2d for average California, and 12s 5d@12s 8d for club.

There is not much of a demand on our local money lenders at present from merchants or traders of any class, though large sums for home enterprises and improvements could be readily placed, and would give business actively impetus, at rates not above 8@9 per annum; but these terms are out of the question under existing circumstances, or until further experience teaches the lesson of a reduction from an actual overplus of capital in the country. Most capitalists or other lenders in our city usually look forward to the fall of the year as a season when the ordinary available money in the market is all in request, and consequent high rates prevail. Hence, while the various moneyed institutions are liberally supplied and loans are slow, we find but little effort, comparatively, being made just now to place money, as the lender confidently expects that when the fall trade opens and the large crops in the State are to be moved, the borrower will come to him. That demand, however, will be readily met this season, and though terms may not be much relaxed, the full state of banking coffers in different sections of the country lead to a hope of better and readier accommodations than have hitherto been enjoyed, in our State particularly.

Home Produce Market.

WHEAT—The market is bare of transactions for immediate delivery, if we except a few small lots which occasionally are taken by millers at $1 50@1 60 per cental; exporters would probably not pay over $1 40@1 45, and are not receiving any at present. Their contracts for the new crop are held private as yet.

FLOUR—The supply of standard brands of extras is limited, and most now in hands will be worked off in the local trade. Prices, therefore, keep well up, being quotable at $5 50 ⅌ bbl. Common country brands can be had in abundance at $4 75@5; superfine, $4.

OATS—While the current demand is well supplied, there is no overstock coming in, and our quotations are 45 cents ⅌ bushel for choice and 40c for inferior. We predict a decline in the course of ten days, or two weeks at most.

BARLEY—There is a good demand for choice lots for brewing purposes, and such readily command $1 50 ⅌ 100 lbs, including sacks. Common feed quotable at $1 40@1 45.

FEED—But little demand outside of home wants is now felt and prices are weak at $13 ⅌ ton for Bran, $17 50 for shorts, and $20 for chops, middlings, etc.

HAY—The new crop is coming in largely, supplying the market at reduced rates. Dealers pay $10@11 ⅌ ton for loose timothy from wagons and $12@13 for baled.

POTATOES—The new crop is now at hand in larger lots, and prices are reduced to 37½@45c ⅌ bushel, according to quality. In some parts of Washington Territory, where large quantities are generally produced, we are informed that the yield this year will be greatly reduced by reason of some disease, the exact nature of which is unknown, though many persons call it the blight.

ONIONS—The market is firm at 2a2½c ⅌ lb for choice lots of yellow, inclusive of sacks.

DRIED FRUIT—For apples the inquiry is hardly so brisk as at our last report, being quotable in sacks at 5@5½c, and 6@6½c in kegs. Plums are not changed.

BACON—The market in this commodity is in a somewhat anomalous condition. The supply is good, and holders of sides are firm in their rates, which are 9½@11c ⅌ lb, while hams and shoulders are both plenty and cheap, 20,000 lbs of the latter being offered in our hearing the other day at 8 cts, while hams are quotable at 13@14c. Our figures are for ordinary lots, choice being held at an advance. We include sides, hams and shoulders, all under the general name, as being the one most usually understood.

LARD—The receipts are not heavy and we quote good fresh Oregon, in tins firm at 13@14 cts ⅌ lb; in kegs 12@13 cts.

BUTTER—The shipments by the outgoing steamer to San Francisco will be quite heavy, relieving this market of quite a large surplus for which there is no demand here, and which promises a very slim margin there. Very fair lots are offering at 20@22c ⅌ lb, while inferior ranges all the way from 12½@18 cents; best for table use in demand at 21@25c.

CHEESE—The receipts of Oregon made are light and importations supply, in large part, the local demand. We quote at 15@18 cts ⅌ lb, according to brand.

EGGS—The receipts have declined in volume materially during the past few days, leaving the local trade a little short of the accustomed supplies, and though the demand for shipping does not justify it, the temporary wants of our home market have raised the price to 18 cents per dozen. Should receipts be considerable these rates would quickly droop.

CHICKENS—There is a fair demand, but lots of grown firm at $4@4 25 ⅌ dozen; spring, $3a3 50.

FRESH MEATS—The arrivals of sheep and cattle are increasing and are in better condition. Choice mutton sheep sell at $2 75a3 per head; common, $2 25a2 50. Fat young steers command 5¼@6¼ cts ⅌ lb on foot, according to the wants of the buyer. Common lots are worth 4@4½ cts.

HIDES—The receipts continue large and are freely taken at 15@16c ⅌ lb for dry, 6@7c for green, if without blemish. Calfs are quotable at 12½c.

WOOL—The steamer now in port will take nearly 100,000 lbs to San Francisco, and the quantity now here will still be very large, and receipts daily added by raft and boats, impress the observer with an enlarged opinion of our State as a wool producing country. Some extra fine lots have been received during the week for which fancy prices were paid, but current rates for choice may be given at 24@30c, inferior, 20@25c ⅌ lb.

Shipping Intelligence.

The steamship Ajax is receiving freight for San Francisco and will sail at 5 P. M. to-morrow.

The schooner Oregonian, from San Francisco, with a full freight of miscellaneous merchandise, arrived at her berth this morning.

The Superior, for Puget Sound; the Achievement, for Liverpool; the Hera, Dreadnought and Webfoot for San Francisco, have all gone to sea the past week. According to the Astorian, the steamship Idaho, on her last trip, carried the most valuable cargo which ever left the Columbia river. It was mostly salmon and was valued at $175,000.

Whatever changes are wrought by fashion in the style of dress, nothing can compensate for the want of a clear, bright complexion in woman. Beauty in the sterner sex is small account, but in the female it is a never-failing source of power. The habits of American life lead to premature decay of beauty: late hours and suppers undermine the health, and if not restored, a faded look takes the place of facial beauty, which might be preserved for years if the health-restoring Magnolia Balm of Prof. Hagan had been regularly used.

Proscribed Hair:—The fathers of the Saxon church rolled forth their thunders against the fashion of wearing long hair. A Prelate, Serlo, preached a sermon before Henry the Ist, who was then on a visit to Normandy, against what he considered the reigning vice. The King and his courtiers were moved to tears. When he saw the impression he had made, he cunningly produced a pair of scissors and clipped the whole congregation. But the hair of the people was still worn as long as ever. The love of hair seems innate, and to this may be attributed the immense popularity of Lyon's Kathairon; which beautifies, preserves, and perpetuates it.

Knights of Pythias.—Mystic Lodge No. 2 holds regular Conventions on Thursday Evening of each week at 7½ o'clock, at the Castle Hall, N. W. cor. First and Taylor streets. Sojourning Knights are cordially invited to attend. By order of the

A BRAVE DOCTOR'S DEATH.

In 1868 the Government of Madras, India, inspired by the Governor, Lord Francis Napier, of Merchistoun, who temporarily succeeded the assassinated Viceroy, Lord Mayo, offered a large reward for the discovery of proper treatment for snake bites, and more especially for the almost invariably fatal puncture of the Cobra di capella, or hooded spectacle snake. Dr. Fayer, of Calcutta, and Dr. Shortt, of Madras, whose names have been frequently brought before the readers of American newspapers in connection with this subject, after a lengthy series of experiments, determined that caustic potash was, if not a specific, the best possible thing to be used. To them Dr. Rule, of the Madras army, civil surgeon at the fort and station of Vellore, in South Arcot, and a member of the special committee to investigate the properties of the cinchonia and other alkaloids developed in the recent cultivation of the cinchona officinalis on the Neilgherry Hills, as [illegible], and more economical than, quinine, [illegible] an enthusiastic adherent. He extended his experiments to the treatment of [illegible] bitten by dogs.

[illegible] died of heart disease [illegible] physicians report [illegible] to his bed. A few days before taking [illegible] applied for membership in Boone [illegible] Knights of Pythias. His petition was accepted and he took the first degree. The following meeting night Lamadrid was admitted into full fellowship and became a Knight.

After his initiation he was called off to play with his band at a frolic on Jefferson street, and, while playing on his instrument some time after midnight, he became suddenly ill and showed symptoms of fainting and asphyxia. Before daylight some of his friends took him home and cared for him. During his illness he was attended by Drs. C. W. Kelly, W. C. Cox and a regular detail of his brethren from the Order. He died five days after he was taken ill.

His widow, however, has differed from the opinion of the physicians as to the cause of his death, and yesterday filed the following suit for damages in the sum of $100,000:

Jefferson Court of Common Pleas—Maggie Lamadrid, plaintiff vs W. C. Cox, Dr. C. W. Kelly, —— Sarles and Geo. C. Shadburne, defendants.—The plaintiff, Maggie Lamadrid, says that she is the widow of Frank Lamadrid. She says that on the — day of —, 187–, the defendants, W. C. Cox, C. W. Kelly, —— Sarles, George C. Shadburne and others to this plaintiff unknown, can in the city of Louisville, so beat, bruise and injure her said husband, that by reason of said beating, dragging, etc., he died, whereby she was and is deprived of the company, support and protection of her husband, and to her great damage. The plaintiff Maggie Lamadrid says that the defendants W. C. Cox, C. W. Kelly, —— Sarles, Geo. Shadburne and others to this plaintiff unknown, on the — day of ——, 187–, in the city of Louisville did conspire together and persuade [illegible] Frank Lamadrid, the husband of the plaintiff to join, become a member and be initiated into a certain secret society, commonly called Knights of Pythias Boone Lodge—and that said defendants and others to her unknown did beat, drag and misuse her said husband in going through their rites, or their pretended rites, that by reason thereof he died, thereby depriving her of his support, care and protection; and that by reason of their said unlawful, [illegible], and wicked conduct she has been damaged $100,000; therefore she prays judgment for $100,000 damages and for all other proper relief.

A TEXAN DUEL.

TWO TEXANS EXCHANGE SHOTS—THEY MEET ON THE BANK OF A RIVER—BOTH TAKE ADVANTAGE OF THE SITUATION.

A dispatch from Corsicana, Texas, of June 22 says: Quite a serious shooting affray occurred in this county last week between Mr. Harrington and his brother-in-law, Mr. Bogget, two well-known and respected citizens, between whom an old family feud had existed for some time. Harrington left his home shortly after dinner, and proceeded to the river to fish, leaving his rifle on the bank. He then descended the bluff to the water's edge. He carried with him a pistol to shoot the large fish if he should catch any. He had been fishing but a short time when he heard a noise above him, and looking up he beheld Bogget over him with an oar upraised to strike him, and who said: "Now Harrington, d—n you, I've got you just where I want you, and you can't get away. I am between you and your rifle. You've been talking about my father long enough, and I am going to kill you." Harrington immediately raised his pistol and fired, the ball taking effect in Bogget's breast, ranging upward and lodging in his left shoulder.

He immediately fell into the water. After floating around for some time, he begged Harrington to help him out, as he had already killed him. This Harrington consented to do, and after much trouble and hard work he succeeded in getting him to land and upon the bank. Bogget then said, "For God's sake run, and get a doctor, for I am dying." Harrington immediately shouldered his shot-gun and started on a run. As soon as he had his back turned, Bogget reached for his rifle, and exclaimed, "Hold on, you've killed me, and I don't want the doctor to come, and I'll be [illegible] if you are going to get off so easy. He [illegible] aimed and shot at Harrington, [illegible] striking him in the side and passing [illegible] through. Harrington then exclaimed, "[illegible], I've shot you once, and I'll shoot you again," and shot a load of shot into [illegible]. He then walked all the way home and told his friends the whole circumstance.

Bogget was found lying on the ground, [illegible] he had received the last shot. He was [illegible] to his home and medical aid [illegible]. Strange to say, both are still [illegible] and Harrington is in a fair way of recovery, while hopes are entertained of Bogget's recovery. Both tell the same identical [illegible] even to the minute. It is altogether the [illegible] affair ever known to our citizens.—[illegible] News.

[illegible] FINANCES.—Boston, July 6.—The report of the City Auditor was presented to the [illegible] of Aldermen to-night. The population of the city is now 292,499; valuation, $765,818,713.

FINANCE AND COMMERCE.

Financial.

THURSDAY EVENING, July 16, 1874.

Gold in New York, 110.

Portland Legal Tenders, buying 89¼, selling 90½.

Gold bars are quotable at 725@750 fine.

Exchange on New York, ½ per cent. premium for currency, and one per cent. premium for gold.

Exchange on San Francisco at ¾ of 1 per cent. premium.

Wheat in Liverpool, by mail advices from San Francisco, 12s@12s 2d for average California, and 12s 4d@12s 9d for club.

There is not much of a demand on our local money lenders at present from merchants or traders of any class, though large sums for home enterprises and improvements could be readily placed, and would give business a lively impetus, at rates not above 8@9 ⅌ ct ⅌ annum; but these terms are out of the question under existing circumstances, or until further experience teaches the lesson of a reduction from an actual overplus of capital in the country. Most capitalists or other lenders in our city usually look forward to the fall of the year as a season when the ordinary available money in the market is all in request, and consequent high rates prevail. Hence, while the various moneyed institutions are liberally supplied and loans are slow, we find but little effort, comparatively, being made just now to place money, as the lender confidently expects that when the fall trade opens and the large crops in the State are to be moved, the borrower will come to him. That demand, however, will be readily met this season, and though terms may not be much relaxed, the full state of banking coffers in different sections of the country lead to a hope of better and readier accommodations than have hitherto been enjoyed in our State particularly.

Home Produce Market.

WHEAT—The market is barren of transactions for immediate delivery, if we except a few small lots which occasionally are taken by millers at $1 50@1 60 per cental; exporters would probably not pay over $1 40@1 45, and are not receiving any at present. Their contracts for the new crop are held private as yet.

FLOUR—The supply of standard brands of extras is limited, and most now in hands will be worked off in the local trade. Prices, therefore, keep well up, being quotable at $5 50 ⅌ bbl. Common country brands can be had in abundance at $4 75@5; superfine, $4.

OATS—While the current demand is well supplied, there is no overstock coming in, and our quotations are 45 cents ⅌ bushel for choice and 40c for inferior. We predict a decline in the course of ten days, or two weeks at most.

BARLEY—There is a good demand for choice lots for brewing purposes, and such readily command $1 50 ⅌ 100 lbs, including sacks. Common feed quotable at $1 40@1 45.

FEED—But little demand outside of home wants is now felt, and prices are weak at $13 ⅌ ton for bran, $17 50 for shorts; and $20 for chops, middlings, [illegible].

HAY—The new crop is coming in largely, supplying the market at reduced rates. Dealers pay $10@11 ⅌ ton for timothy from wagons and $12@13 for baled.

POTATOES—The new crop is now at hand in larger lots, and prices are reduced to 37½@45c ⅌ bushel, according to quality. In some parts of Washington Territory where large quantities are generally produced we are informed that the yield this year will be greatly reduced by reason of some disease, the exact nature of which is unknown, though many persons call it the blight.

ONIONS—The market is firm at 2@2½c ⅌ lb for choice [illegible] yellow, inclusive of sacks.

DRIED FRUIT—For apples the inquiry is hardly so brisk as at our last report, being quotable in sacks at [illegible]c ⅌ lb and [illegible]c in kegs. Plums are not changed.

BACON—The market in this commodity is in a somewhat anomalous condition. The supply is good, and holders of sides are firm in their rates, which are [illegible] ⅌ lb, while hams and shoulders are both plenty and cheap. 200,000 lbs of the latter being offered in our hearing the other day at 8 cts, while hams are quotable at 13@14c. Our figures are for ordinary lots, choice being held at an advance. We include sides, hams and shoulders, all under the general name, as being the one most usually understood.

LARD—The receipts are not heavy and we quote good fresh Oregon, in tins firm at 13@14 cts ⅌ lb. In kegs 12@13 cts.

BUTTER—The shipments by the outgoing steamer to San Francisco will be quite heavy, relieving this market of quite a large surplus for which there is no demand here, and which promises a very slim margin there. Very fair lots are offering at 20@22c ⅌ lb, while inferior ranges all the way from 12½@18 cents; best for table use in demand at 21@25c.

CHEESE—The receipts of Oregon made are light and importations supply, in large part, the local demand. We quote at 15@18 cts ⅌ lb according to brand.

EGGS—The receipts have declined in volume materially during the past few days, leaving the local trade a little short of the accustomed supplies and though the demand for shipping does not justify it, the temporary wants of our home market have raised the price to 18 cents per dozen. Should receipts be considerable these rates would quickly droop.

CHICKENS—There is a fair demand, but lots of grown firm at $4@4 25 ⅌ dozen; spring, $3@3 50.

FRESH MEATS—The arrivals of sheep and cattle are increasing and are in better condition. Choice mutton sheep sell at $2 75@3 per head; common, $2 25@2 50. Fat young steers command 5¼@6½ cts ⅌ lb on foot, according to the wants of the buyer. Common lots are worth 4½@5 cts.

HIDES—The receipts continue large and are freely taken at 15@16c ⅌ lb for dry, 6@7c for green, if without blemish. Culls are quotable at 12½c.

WOOL—The steamer now in port will take nearly 100,000 lbs to San Francisco, and the quantity now here will still be very large, and receipts daily added by rail and boats, impress the observer with an enlarged opinion of our State as a wool producing country. Some extra fine lots have been received during the week, for which fancy prices were paid, but current rates for choice may be given at 26@30c, inferior, 20@25c ⅌ lb.

Shipping Intelligence.

The steamship Ajax is receiving freight for San Francisco, and will sail at 6 P. M. to-morrow.

The schooner Oregonian, from San Francisco, with a full freight of miscellaneous merchandise, arrived at her berth this morning.

The Superior, for Puget Sound; the Achievement, for Liverpool; the Hera, Dreadnaught and Webfoot, for San Francisco, have all gone to sea the past week. According to the Astorian, the steamship Idaho, on her last trip, carried the most valuable cargo which ever left the Columbia river. It was mostly salmon and was valued at $175,000.

Whatever changes are wrought by fashion in the style of dress, nothing can compensate for the want of a clear, bright complexion in woman. Beauty in the sterner sex is of small account, but in the female it is a never-failing source of power. The habits of American life lead to premature decay of beauty; late hours and suppers undermine the health, and if not restored, a faded look takes the place of facial beauty, which might be preserved for years if the health-restoring MAGNOLIA BALM of Prof. Hagan had been regularly used.

Proscribed Hair!—The fathers of the Saxon church rolled forth their thunders against the fashion of wearing long hair. A Prelate, Serlo, preached a sermon before Henry the 1st, who was then on a visit to Normandy, against what he considered the reigning vice. The King and his courtiers were moved to tears. When he saw the impression he had made, the cunning produced a pair of scissors and clipped the whole congregation. But the hair of the people was still worn as long as ever. The love of hair seems innate, and to this may be attributed the immense popularity of LYON'S KATHAIRON, which beautifies, preserves, and perpetuates it.

Knights of Pythias.—Mystic Lodge No. 2 holds regular Conventions on Thursday Evening of each week at 7½ o'clock, at the Castle Hall, N. W. cor. First and Taylor streets. Sojourning Knights are cordially invited to attend. By order of the Lodge.
